PREFACE

This History of Trans Alpine was written for the Lincoln Historical Society in 1935, the first year of its organization. It was read in the society by the author as a paper on April 8, 1935, and it was re-written and passed in to the society on December 14, 1936.

There have been many calls for copies of this history, but I have refrained from getting it published because of Dr. Dana Fellows' History of Lincoln, which contains the genealogy of several families who came from Trans Alpine. But I have avoided using his material as much as possible in giving the origin of these families and I have endeavored to bring the genealogy of all families up to date.

There were no roads when Trans Alpine was first settled and many of the emigrants came up across Cold Stream Lake from Enfield, and it is probable that some came over across from the river, as there is an old road across from Cole Hill to the Enfield road. Therefore all the first settlements were made in the southern part of the neighborhood, many of them down by the mill at the extreme north end of the lake.

I have drawn a map of the roads as they were laid out, and I have put all the houses on the map by number as far as I could determine, and I have given a sketch of each of the different families that lived in each house as far as I know, and their genealogy is given alphabetically in the back of the book.

There are now only nine families living in, or connected with Trans Alpine, who are descendants of the old settlers: The Cummings family, Lowe, Phinney, Clay, Delano, Lowell, Ripley, Cole and Edwards. Fifteen of the original houses are still in use, and one of the old schoolhouses is still standing.

I wish to express my appreciation to all who have helped with this work by furnishing material for the family records, etc.

SITUATION

TRANS ALPINE is situated in the southern part of Lincoln, on the Burlington road, beyond Fish Hill. It comprises four other hills: one at Bruce Corner, one farther along on the Burlington road, and one at each end of the neighborhood. There is a very fine view from the Cole Hill, and also from the Burlington road. That is the best view of Mt. Katahdin that I have ever seen, set off by other hills on either side.

To reach Trans Alpine from the village the road goes over the side of Fish Hill, which was a very hard haul for horses before the time of automobiles and trucks, hence the effort of the people to get a road through the valley; and they did, by their own efforts, build a winter road from Rounds Brook through to Mattanawcook Lake and down back of the lake to Taylor Street, a distance of about three miles. This road was well laid out, with only three turns in it, and it was used for driving as well as hauling, through the winter, as the road over the hill was not broken out.

But now that the automobile has come the hill is no longer a menace, and the road has to be kept open for the bus to convey the pupils to the village to school.

CUSTOMS OF THE EARLY SETTLERS OF TRANS ALPINE

WHEN the people first came to this neighborhood to settle, which was, according to the History of Penobscot County, in March, 1819, they had to endure many hardships before they could construct suitable shelter, as they had very few tools with which to work.

Many came here in the spring before the ice went out of the river and lakes, as the ice gave them a means of travel which they needed as there were no roads.

The first houses were made of logs, and they hewed out boards with their axes for floors, etc., and they used rocks for chimneys before there were any brick.

The trees of the forest then were large, as they had never been cut over; now the woods as we see it is nearly all second growth. In our dining room, on the farm, there are some very wide boards which form the wainscoting. This dining room is the oldest part of the house, and it was built in about 1830.

They had a fireplace in the dining room; we have the frame yet, as also the shovel and thongs, kettles and baker. The baker is made of tin and set up on legs with one side open where they set the tin of biscuit in to bake, and then set it up to the fire. They baked their potatoes in the hot ashes.

When they built the kitchen on they built a brick oven; these ovens were in nearly all of the old houses. They used them to bake in before they had stoves. They would build a hot fire in the oven and heat the bricks; they let the fire down into the place below, and then put the food into the oven to bake. They also used these ovens for smoking hams.

They had all homemade furniture at first. They made the bedsteads, tied them together with rope, then made a straw or husk tick and a featherbed, which was nice and warm for winter, but not so nice for summer.

We had a Bird's Eye Maple bureau in our dining room which was made by hand for my mother, for a wedding present, in 1865. (See cut).

My grandfather had a corn house, which I can remember, where they put the corn to dry before shelling.

They also had several hives of bees. My father never got stung by the bees, they seemed to know him.

For amusements in our neighborhood, in the early days, they had a lot of meetings and sings that I have heard them tell about. Josiah Perkins, with others, used to go around in the winter evenings in a little house on runners to different homes and have a sing. There were no less than four Lay Preachers there, so I doubt if the young people were allowed to dance and play cards. But later on, at least, they had paring bees, quiltings, huskings, wood-cutting bees and barn-raisings. In House No. 47 there was a very good hall in the shed chamber, where they had parties and some dances later on.

Very few of the farmers had horses, as they did their work mostly with oxen, so they could not get about very much and were dependent upon the neighborhood, principally, for their social life. One or two of the neighbors had stores, where people could buy some things without going to the village, which must have been a great convenience.

The Bird's Eye Maple, hand-made bureau, referred to, as restored by its present owner, Frederick W. Pinkham of Bangor, Maine.

THE FIRST SETTLERS OF TRANS ALPINE

IN BEGINNING this History we will start at the southwest end of the neighborhood by Cold Stream Lake, as the first settlements were made there by families and men who came up across the lake from Enfield, before there were any roads.

The first pioneers who landed there, as far as we know, were Alpheus Hayden and Levi Doane, immigrants from Canaan, Somerset County, Maine. We think that these families did not stay here by the lake very long but went on to the top of Long Ridge Hill, where Mr. Hayden built the Johnson Neal house and Mr. Doane built a house farther on.

According to the History of Penobscot County, they came here in March 1819, and they were the first settlers in the Town of Huntressville, which name was afterwards changed to Lowell, in honor of Lowell Hayden, the first male child ever born there.

HOUSE NO. 1, on the map.

In 1852 Mr. Hayden, with his son Lewis, returned to Cold Stream Lake. (His wife and son Lowell died and were buried on Long Ridge.) They built a house down near the lake, which was called the Hayden House; this was below the Davis House, which is still standing. They afterwards moved to Lincoln Village on Lee Street.

HOUSE NO. 2, The Davis House.

Barzilla Delano first settled here. (See Delano family in Genealogy.) He was succeeded by his son, Daniel, who later exchanged places with Joseph Davis, who first settled the Luther Clay place. Joseph and his wife, Aunt Becky, lived at the Davis House for many years. He and their daughter (Sarah Jane) died and were buried in the Trans Alpine cemetery. Their stones are still standing. Joseph was succeeded by his son, William, and he, by his descendants. The place is now owned by Lawrence Cole.

HOUSE NO. 3.

Next to the Davis house on the Lake shore road, was the Joe Roet place. John Hayden, son of Alpheus, lived there first and afterwards moved to Burlington and sold out to Joe Roet.

HOUSE NO. 4.

Farther along on this road was the Phelps place. This was first settled by Alfred Lombard, son of Hezekiah Lombard, and he sold it to Ambrose Phelps, whose stepson, Benjamin Haskell, was brought up here. He died last year at his home on Perry Street, Lincoln. His family still own this place.

Returning now to the Davis House, we will consider the homes as they extended along the way which afterwards became a road through the neighborhood of Trans Alpine.

HOUSE NO. 5.

This place was settled by William Doble. He was one of the earliest settlers and a Local Preacher. He married, in 1842, Mary Jane Lombard, dau. of Hezekiah Lombard, above mentioned. This family afterwards moved over on the Enfield road. Mr. Doble's first wife, Hannah, died in 1834 and was buried in the Trans Alpine cemetery.

HOUSE NO. 6.

The next place above, (and this house was just about on the brow of the hill), was first settled by John M. Perkins, the Singing School Master. This house stood there for many years. Mr. Perkins' wife was Phoebe Buck, born in Buckfield, Me. She died in 1842 and Mr. Perkins married again and moved to South Orrington. He was succeeded on the farm by his son, Josiah, who m. Sally Clay, dau. of Jonathan Clay. They were a very musical family; their dau., Phoebe, had a fine soprano voice, and her mother sang alto.

Their musical neighbors frequently came in and sang with them; especially Fred Edwards who had a very deep bass voice. He and Josiah would sometimes practice a piece a long time until they got it to suit them; then Phoebe and her mother would take their parts with them.

Phoebe is now living in Montesano, Wash. She is 86 years old but her whole heart seems to be in Trans Alpine, on the old place, although she knows that the buildings have been gone for many years. Her father and mother were both buried in Montesano. They lived there with her. Her husband, John Buck, was also buried there.

When the Perkins family were living in Trans Alpine, Jonathan (Jock) Darling and his wife, who was Nancy Hayden, lived in the house with them for about two years. Their oldest child, Alice, was born there. They moved down to the Hayden house after the other Haydens moved away.

Josiah Perkins sold his farm in 1863 and moved to Goulds Ridge. In 1873 they went to Minneapolis, Minn., and in 1893 they went to Washington, where he died on April 26, 1895, at the age of 66 years; and his wife died in 1902 at the age of 74 years.

Henry Dolly next lived on this place. He moved down by the mill from here, and Nathan Cole bought the place. He lived here with his wife and dau. Florence for a few years and then moved down to the Rounds Place. Asa Clay afterwards bought this place, but the buildings have been gone for a long time.

HOUSE NO. 7.

The next house below was first owned by Hezekiah Lombard, as far as we can determine. He came here before 1825. He probably built the house, and it has a peculiarity, in that it faces directly South while the road goes by in a southwesterly and northeasterly direction, showing that the house was built before the road.

Mr. Lombard came here from Harrison, Me., and lived here about 30 years. He was the son of Benjamin Lombard. His wife's name was Patience A. They are both buried in the Trans Alpine cemetery.

Their dau. Mandy m. Fenderleson, and they lived here for many years then moved to the brick house on the hill. They raised a large family of children. They sold the Lombard place to William Coburn, son of Silas Coburn. They had a dau. Olive.

Mr. Coburn sold the place to Frank and Edwin Doane; they were descendants of Levi Doane, above mentioned.

They sold out to Benjamin Cole in 1880. He came here from Winterport; his wife's name was Mary Doane. Vesta and Howard Cole came here with them, a niece and a nephew. Benj. Cole died in 1909 and his wife in 1902. Their son, Edwin, carried on the place for a few years, then bought the Crane farm on the Enfield road and sold this place to H. A. Phinney. Mr. Phinney sold to W. W. Holmes. We think his heirs still own the place. This house is still standing, but the barn was struck by lightning and burned a few years ago.

HOUSE NO. 8.

Across the road from the above, is the Phinney farm; and on this farm, before you get to the house, is the Trans Alpine Cemetery, above mentioned.

Samuel Dow first settled this place. He came before 1825, and was a taxpayer in town for more than 30 years. His son, John, m. Anna R. Lowell in 1863. They moved to E. Lincoln and their son, Harold C., was b. there in 1864. Harold was supervisor of schools in Lincoln for many years, and was liked very much. He m. 1st, Bertha T. Wheeler, of E. Lincoln, and 2nd, Alberta Fenwick of Lincoln. He d. 4 Dec. 1923.

William Phinney was the next owner of this farm. He was b. in Waquoit, Mass., in 1814, and came here in about 1865, and bought the Crane's mill. He ran that for a while and then bought this farm and sold the mill to D. S. Plumly of Lincoln. This mill was called Plumly's Mill for a good many years.

Mr. Phinney spent the last years of his life with his son, Earl, who lived on the Andrew Edwards place. His son, Albert, afterwards lived on this farm for a few years. Hartwell, son of Earl, now owns the farm. The buildings were torn down quite recently.

HOUSE NO. 9.

Albert Phinney, above mentioned, built a house down below here, near the mill, and lived there several years. They then moved to Lincoln and from there to Bangor, where Albert died in 1919. His wife, who was Elmyra Yelland, died there in 1938. She left two daughters, Evelyn and Catherine, who are still living at the home-place in Bangor.

HOUSE NO. 10.

Joseph Gillispie lived in a house about opposite the mill house. He lived there a long time and raised a large family of children.

HOUSE NO. 11.

This was the Mill House and was just a little above the Mill. Ebenezer Hubbard built this mill in 1834. Allen Crane soon became associated with him; and later Mr. Crane's sons, Frances and Samuel C., became connected with the mill. This was called Crane's Mill for many years. After D. S. Plumly bought this mill, Andrew Stanhope ran the mill for him and lived in the mill house. He raised a large family of children.

This sawmill was situated at the foot of Upper Cold Stream Lake, where it forms a stream and runs into Lower Cold Stream Lake, which extends to Enfield. Many of the settlers, it seems, came up to this point when they landed; as there are several houses, or were, around the end of this lake where these people first lived. I will number these houses as follows:

HOUSE NO. 12.

Sawmill. It has been torn down.

HOUSE NO. 13.

Jonathan Clay; this house was the farthest around on the other side of the Lake.

HOUSE NO. 14.

James Cummings had a house next below the Clay house.

HOUSE NO. 15.

Chandler Bruce had his first house just at the foot of Long Ridge Hill.

HOUSE NO. 16.

Winthrop Frost had a house in this vicinity, but we cannot tell exactly where it was situated. He was a Local Preacher.

HOUSE NO. 17.

The Old Schoolhouse, situated back on the road about opposite the above mentioned Cemetery. This schoolhouse was built in the year 1835—the third schoolhouse in the town of Lincoln. There were only 15 taxpayers here at that time, and they built this house at the cost of nearly Three Hundred Dollars.

HOUSE NO. 18.

Andrew Edwards first settled this place. The buildings are at the corner of the main road below the schoolhouse. He and his brother, Azariah Edwards, came here from Waldo County in 1825. He was a Local Preacher, making four in this vicinity; so they doubtless had a lot of preaching and a lot of singing in that old schoolhouse.

Mr. Edwards m. Lucy Frost, dau. of Winthrop Frost. He and his wife and their son, Charlie, are buried in the Trans Alpine Cemetery.

Robert Whitney lived in this house, also Sumner Swett, whose dau., Marcia Swett, was a great lover of wild flowers. She seemed to know every flower that grew, and she would tell the other scholars what was poison. She m. Main, and their dau., Lillian Main, m. Mr. Christopher, who kept a candy store in Lincoln. They moved from here to Florida.

A. C. Lancaster was the next owner here. He m. Mary Alice Hammond, dau. of Benj. Hammond. (See Hammond Genealogy).

Earl Phinney, son of the above William Phinney, was the next owner here, and he was succeeded by his son, Hartwell, who still carries on the farm but lives in Lincoln Village. He died 31 July 1949.

HOUSE NO. 19.

The place across the road from here, and below the above-mentioned Cole Place, was first settled by William Gowen, son of Elder Joseph Gowen. He came here from Montville, Me. Later he moved to the Bacon Place at Bruce Corner where he and his wife died.

Daniel Clifford was the next owner here. He came here from Lee, Me. His wife's name was Priscilla Thornton. They lived here for many years and raised a large family of children. They moved to Lincoln Village and spent their last days with their son, Dannie, on West Broadway.

Eldie Tucker rebuilt on this site and is now living there. Later he sold out to Eugene King.

HOUSE NO. 20.

Sylvanus Davis had a blacksmith shop just below the last-named place. He moved from here over to the Narrows with his son, Charles.

HOUSE NO. 21.

Osward Warren, probably a brother of John Warren, lived next below. Children: John and Melvin.

HOUSE NO. 22.

Across the road from the last-named house is the Jonas Coburn place. We think this place was first settled by his father, Silas Coburn. Jonas was a brother of William, above-mentioned. He was b. in Sumner, Me., in 1821.

Otis Hewy next lived here. He m. Anna Glidden and their dau., Effie, m. Everett Lancaster.

The next owner was Edwin Hammond, son of Benj. Hammond, b. in Lincoln in 1837. He m. Julia Maria Lindsay. They moved here in 1880, and they moved into the Haskell House in Lincoln in 1897. A. C. Lancaster and his family moved out there with them. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond both died there.

Benjamin Swasey was the next owner here. They lived here for several years and raised a large family of children. While they were living there, the buildings caught fire and burned. They moved to the brick house on the Enfield road.

S. H. Kneeland bought the farm and built a small house on it. Alfred Jipson lived there for a while. Amasa York now lives there.

HOUSE NO. 23.

On the other side of the road, beyond the hollow, is the Allen Crane Place. He and his wife, Mary Coggshall, were both b. in Mass. They came to Lincoln before 1835 and lived here twenty years. His connection with the mill has already been alluded to. His son, Francis, succeeded him; whose daughter, Lizzie, taught school in the new schoolhouse just beyond here opposite the Luther Clay place. She taught here for several terms and was liked very much. This family moved from here to the Crane house on the Enfield road, and from there to Stillwater, where Lizzie d. Nov. 11, 1942.

Augustus Clifford was the next owner here. He was a brother of the above Daniel Clifford, and came here from Lee. He m. Jane Lancaster. She d. here after raising a large family of children, and Villa, the oldest girl, kept house for her father and cared for the other children. Later she taught school in the adjacent schoolhouse. She m. Orlando Libby of California.

Mr. Clifford m. 2nd, Mrs. Emeline Thompson of Burlington. He d. here and Mrs. Clifford sold out to Mr. Augustus Neal. He was the son of Johnson Neal, above-mentioned. He m. Julia Tripp of Burlington. They raised a large family of children. They moved to Lincoln Village on Lake Street, where he d. 17 Dec. 1940. Mrs. Neal d. at the home of her dau., Mrs. Hartwell Phinney, on 9 Nov. 1943.

Raymond Lowe, son of Mellen Lowe, was the next owner here, and he has recently sold out to Mrs. Eva Porter. Her husband, Clint Porter, returned from the war, and they are now living here.

HOUSE NO. 24.

The next house, on this same side of the road, is the new schoolhouse. This house is no longer new, but was called new in comparison with the two old ones which had been in use up to that time; the one referred to above and another near Rounds Brook, near the other end of the neighborhood. After they built this schoolhouse, before 1864, all the scholars attended this one school. Miss Savilla Moore was the first teacher in this new schoolhouse, and she had a large school. This was in 1864. Dana Fellows taught here in 1869. Fred Edwards also taught here.

Religious services were frequently held here by ministers from Lincoln Village and Lincoln Center, and we always had a Sunday School here nearly up to the time when the house was closed.

Elder Morse had a revival here in 1880, (he was from Lincoln Center, and seven young people were baptized: Matilda Ripley Libby, Hittie Ripley Kimball, Lizzie Miles Banks, Villa Clifford Libby, Dorcas Twombly Scott, Nellie Rounds Bradbury, and Edwin A. Yelland. The baptism was held down by the Narrows, at the left, after crossing the bridge.

HOUSE NO. 25.

Opposite the schoolhouse stands the Luther Clay house. This place was first settled by Joseph and Aunt Becky Davis, above mentioned, and they exchanged places with the Delano boys, Daniel and Stephen, and moved down to the Davis house. Later the Delano boys sold this farm to Luther Clay, son of Jonathan Clay, above mentioned. Daniel Delano bought the Nadeau place on the Burlington road. The hill that goes down from there to the Narrows is still called the Dan Delano Hill. Stephen moved to the farther end of the neighborhood above the Dan Clay place. Stephen m. Joan Warren, dau. of John and Nancy Coburn Warren. Their son, Eli, was b. while they were living at the Clay place in 1857.

. Luther Clay was b. in 1837. He m. Olive Lancaster, sister of the above Jane Lancaster, in 1860. Mrs. Clay's niece, Jennie Lancaster, made her home with them. Mr. Clay was a good singer and always led the singing in the new schoolhouse when they had meetings there. Rev. J. H. Irving had regular services in this schoolhouse for a part of the time when he was Pastor of the M. E. Church in Lincoln Village from 1883 to 1885.

Elder Besse of Lincoln Center preached here, and several other ministers.

In 1887 Mr. Clay exchanged places with Harrison Littlefield and moved to the building now occupied by the Osgood Auto Supply Co. They both d. there and left the house to Jennie Lancaster Barker. She sold this house and took rooms in the Worcester House on School Street. She d. there suddenly on Mar. 19, 1939.

The Clay family were good neighbors and a great help to the community. They also brought up their nephew, Everett Lancaster, above-mentioned .

The Littlefield family, who came here in place of the Clay family, also were good neighbors. His wife was Lorinda Smith. They came to Lincoln from Newburg, Me. He was Supt. of the S. S. for a long time and always attended the meetings in the schoolhouse.

They had a nice family of six boys, who were a great addition to the social life of the neighborhood. Three of them belonged to the Trans Alpine baseball team, and they had some nice games.

Miss Ruth M. Smith, a sister of Mrs. Littlefield, taught school here for several terms. She was a large lady and wore soft shoes, so that she could get around without making any noise, and she was always surprising the scholars who were getting into mischief. Addie Woodbury Kneeland also taught school here about this time. Mr. Littlefield and his wife both d. here. She d. in the spring of 1923. They also lost one son, Herbert, while they lived here. Their youngest son, Lisle, now carries on the place.

HOUSE NO. 26.

The next farm is across the road, above the schoolhouse. This is the lower house at Bruce Corner. It is called the Gowen Place. It was first settled by John Bacon, of whom we know very little, but we have a fine photograph of him in our family album, which shows that my people knew him very well.

David Rounds, son of Abner Rounds, was the next owner here. He was b. in 1815; m. Emily Pinkham, dau. of James Pinkham, in 1837.

He sold out to William Gowen, above-mentioned, who m. Lydia Soule of Brownville. They both died here and left the place to their dau. Jemima, who m. Jeremiah Fiske. They both died here, and their dau., Gertrude, sold the place to Samuel Veltman, who improved the buildings and grounds quite extensively while living there. He died quite suddenly on Mar. 23, 1948, at a Lincoln hospital. .

HOUSE NO. 27.

The next place at the right, on the Burlington Road, is the Azariah Edwards place. He was b. in Manchester, Mass., in 1802. He came to Lincoln with his brother, Andrew Edwards, above-mentioned, in 1825, from Waldo County. He m. Catherine Mann of Limington, Me. He first built his house down in the field by a spring. They lived there until about 1834 when they moved the house up near the road, which had just recently been built under the direction of Chandler Bruce. The road over to the Coburn District was also built about this time.

MR. AND MRS. AZARIAH EDWARDS

After moving the house to its present location they built on to it at both ends and the original house was what is now the dining room. Mrs. Edwards' niece, Lizzie Maxwell, made her home with them. She was a very lively person. She m. a minister, C. C. Pratt, and they moved to Centerville, Mass. They had a dau., Nannie.

Mr. Edwards' sons, Fred and Daniel, went to the Civil War, as did nearly all the young men in the neighborhood. So it must have seemed quite lonesome for the old people.

Mr. Edwards cleared a lot of land and had a very good farm. He sold the field across the road to James Cathcart. He also went to the war, 19 Oct. 1861, I Cav. He d. Washington, 1862, 29 Sept.

Mr. Edwards' oldest son, Henry, was called home from Ohio to help carry on the farm, after the other boys went to the war.

After the death of his parents he succeeded them here. He was b. 22 Dec. 1831; m. in 1865, Savilla S. Moore, above-mentioned as the first teacher here in the new schoolhouse.

Mr. Henry Edwards had a taste for writing, he wrote quite a good deal for the papers. He also wrote poetry. It is fortunate that he had this gift for he was quite hard of hearing and it was good pastime for him. He originated the name, Trans Alpine.

In about the year 1885 the people in there were trying to get a road through the valley to Lincoln Village.

Mr. Edwards and Charles Brown, 1st Selectman of Lincoln, were having a discussion through the Up River News in regard to this road. Being unsuccessful in getting the road, Mr. Edwards said: "I have this last request to make: that this place be called Trans Alpine, and that this legend be placed on the signboard at Douglas Corner, with its finger pointing tipsilly up the hill: 'Let him who enters here leave hope behind.'" Mr. Edwards d. here 8 Mar, 1898. Mrs. Edwards d. 22 Apr. 1901. Their son, Ard Edwards and his sisters succeeded them here. Ard operated the farms successfully until his death, 7 Dec. 1942. They had previously bought a residence in town, where they lived winters.

Mr. Cecil Speed and his family from Lee spent their winters here for several years. Mr. Geo. L. Edwards bought this farm in 1948.

HOUSE NO. 28.

The house across the road from the Edwards place was owned and occupied by James Cathcart and his family. He was killed in the Civil War—I Cav., 19 Oct. '61; d. Washington, 29 Sept. '62.

HOUSE NO. 29.

Melzer Turner had a house up above the Cathcart house on the same side of the road. He was one of the earliest settlers of Trans Alpine. He m. Marietta, dau. of Silas Coburn. After they moved away this house was moved down to the Edwards place for a carriage house. It is now a garage there.

HOUSE NO 30.

The Nadeau place was first settled by Francis Doble. He was for many years a member of the School Committee. He m. Vesta They raised three sons, who all went to the Civil War and returned safely. Mr. Doble later moved to Kingman. He sold the place to Daniel Delano, above mentioned. He moved to Lee and sold out to Mr. Nadeau. This is still called the Nadeau place. Mr. Lora Libby now owns the farm but the buildings have been gone for a long time.

HOUSE NO. 31.

The Dan Clay Place was first settled by Sylvanus Davis. He was succeeded by his son, Charles Freeman Davis, who m. Abbie Jane Moulton. They lived there for several years and were nice neighbors. Later they moved to the Davis house on Upper Main Street, which he built. He d. there in 1905. She d. at a Bangor Hospital in 1927.

Daniel P. Clay was the next owner here. It is still called "Dan's Place". This house was burned recently and he built a new one. He also has a residence and Marble Shop on Lake Street. He m. Addie Coffin, who d. 9 Feb. 1942. He worked in his marble shop for about 50 years, then sold it to his son-in-law, Charles Jordan. Mr. Jordan d. 16 Feb. 1945, and his son Arnold now carries on the business.

HOUSE NO. 32.

We will now return to Bruce Corner. The Bruce place was first settled by Benjamin Hews, of whom we know but little, except that he was a Methodist. Chandler Bruce bought the place from him in about 1840. He was the son of Otis Bruce, a Free Baptist Minister of Nottingham, N. H. Chandler was b. in 1815; m. Ruth, dau. of Abner and Sally Rounds. He built a new house and buildings at the Corner when he moved there, which are the same ones standing there now. They lived here for many years and raised a large family of children. They moved from there to High Street, Lincoln, where he d. 14 Aug. 1885.

Ami Bruce succeeded his father at Bruce Corner. Born in 1853; m. Abbie Kneeland, dau. of Sylvanus Kneeland. Her brother, Samuel H. Kneeland, made his home with them, and her niece, Angie Staples, (see Lowell family), also lived with them for some time. They had one child, Ruth Marilla, b. in 1878. Ami was a very lively person and he and his family were missed very much when they moved away.

They first moved to town, in the Bruce house, for a few years. They then went to Tacoma, Wash., where he d. in 1915. Mrs. Bruce went to Pasadena, Cal., where she d. in 1922.

This place was sold to Russell Bradeen, who lived here for a few years; he then sold out to Lora C. Libby, son of Abram Libby of Chester. He m. Alila Hamilton, dau. of Willis Hamilton, in 1897, and they came to this place to live. She d. 7 Apr. 1935, after an illness of several months. She was sorely missed in the neighborhood by those who had lived near her for so many years, to whom she had always bestowed so much kindness and generosity.

RESIDENCE OF LORA C. LIBBY

This house was first built in about 1840, by Chandler Bruce, also the barn. It has been remodeled by Mr. Libby.

Mr. Libby m. 2nd, Mrs. Ella Thombs, widow of Lawyer George Thombs. They still carry on the place. They usually spend the winter months in Florida. Mr. Libby has enlarged the buildings here, making a very attractive home. This is now called Libby Corner.

HOUSE NO. 33.

There was a house just below the corner, on the Village road, where Chandler Bruce, Jr., lived. They moved from here to South Winn. Mr. Henry Dolly, above mentioned, was living in this house when it caught fire and burned.

HOUSE NO. 34.

At the foot of Bruce Hill was another place settled by Sumner Matthews. He m., in 1845, Lucia, dau. of Abner Rounds.

Albion K. Matthews, who was in the Civil War, was probably his son.

HOUSE NO. 35.

Below there on the flat is a house recently built by Claude Jipson. He is living there now with his family.

HOUSE NO. 36.

Next below, on the brow of Ripley Hill, stood the Ripley House. This place was first settled by Leander Crowell, son of William and Abigail Crowell. He was b. in Monroe, Me., in 1813; m. Lydia Staples. He came here in 1847 and remained until 1858; when he moved to Lincoln into the house afterwards called the Messer House on High Street. He d. 17 Feb. 1862. After moving to town he became a butcher and meat dealer. He sold the farm to a Mr. Bradford, of whom we know very little.

Mr. James Cummings, before mentioned, was the next owner here with his wife, Mary. They left the place to their son, Charles Cummings, who later exchanged it with Andrew Ripley for a farm at Half Township.

Mr. Ripley lived here for many years. He m. 1st, Nancy Hutchinson. She d. 2 Mar. 1859. He m. 2nd, Emeline Hodgdon of Burlington. They raised a large family of children. The original house was burned one Saturday night, when they were attending a Grange meeting at Lincoln. They rebuilt on the other side of the road because it was nearer a spring which was their water supply.

A new house has been built on the old site. Mr. Howard Mallett had a saw mill near here a few years ago and did quite a large business, and he built this house. Loren Phinney has recently bought this place. He m. Merle Phinney, dau. of H. A. Phinney, and they are living there. In the fall of 1949 they sold out to Calvin Jordan of Lincoln and moved to town.

HOUSE NO. 37.

This is the new house built by Mr. Ripley on the other side of the road as afore-mentioned. They lived here for many years until the children were all grown up. Mr. Ripley died here 28 July 1899. Mrs. Ripley died at the home of her dau., Matilda Libby, in Lincoln Village. They were succeeded here by their son, Ralph. Mr. John Bonny and his family lived here for a few years. Their dau., Beatrice, m. Claude Jipson, as above-mentioned.

Mr. Millard Cummings, son of Charles Cummings, has recently bought this place, which was owned by his grandfather, James, so many years ago, and he and his family are now living there.

HOUSE NO. 38.

This is the Lindsay place, on the side of Lindsay Hill.

This place was first settled by Mark G. Weymouth, who was one of the first settlers of Lincoln. He came here in 1825 and lived here for several years, and then moved to Lakeville where he d. in 1870. He has a grandson, O. E. Weymouth, who has been engaged extensively in the dairy business, living on the Enfield road.

Mr. Weymouth sold out to Dr. Thomas Lindsay, Jr. He was b. in Wakefield, N. H., in 1801; d. Lincoln, in 1864; m. Mary Jerusha Sawyer of Wakefield. She d. Lincoln, 29 Nov. 1894.

Dr. Lindsay's brother, George Lindsay, moved here at the time of his death to take care of Aunt Mary. She was called Aunt Mary Lindsay by all who knew her. George d. in 1872, and his son, Stockbridge, succeeded him. He m. Sarah M. Heald, dau. of Andrew Heald. They lived here for many years. He always attended the meetings in the schoolhouse and was Supt. of the S. S. for a long time, and was a great help.

After Aunt Mary died in 1894, Stockbridge sold out to Ancil Millett and moved to Lincoln Center, near the R. R. crossing, where he died.

Mr. Millett m. Mary Butler. They lived here for several years then sold out to Allen Hamilton, a brother of Mrs. L. C. Libby.

Mr. Millett died in Lincoln and his wife now lives in California. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton lived here for a few years, then sold out to the Fox Co. The buildings burned a few years ago and the Fox Co. rebuilt them. They also built several other houses on the farm to accommodate the fox ranches.

Ira Fish was an extensive land owner and lumberman in town, and Fish Hill was named for him. It is sometimes called Lindsay Hill.

HOUSE NO. 39.

The next house on this road was the Brick House. This house was burned just a few years ago, and all the buildings now are gone.

Asa Kneeland, son of Aaron Kneeland, cleared this farm in about 1823. He sold out to Daniel Jameson, son of Jeremiah Jameson. He m. Leanora Patterson, 3 Mar. 1844, and moved onto this farm. They lived here until about 1870, when they moved to the Charles Wyman house on High Street. This was called the Jameson House for a long time. Daniel d. here in 1896, and Mrs. Jameson d. 11 Dec. 1901. Mr. Fenderleson was the next owner of the Brick House. He m. Mandy Lombard, afore-mentioned. He sold out to W. B. Pinkham.

Mr. Pinkham was b. in Industry, Me., in 1827; d. in Lincoln, 1894. His family lived here for several years and then purchased the Burton house on Main Street and moved there. His son, Howard, succeeded him here. He m. Mrs. Clara Edwards in 1887. They lived here for

RESIDENCE OF ROBERT H. LOWELL

These buildings were built probably by Abner Rounds, who came here from Buckfield in about 1830.

several years and raised a family, then moved to the house on Main Street where they both died. She d. 29 Feb. 1944.

The heirs of Charles Wyman still own this place. Anthony Trott was living there when the buildings burned.

HOUSE NO. 40.

At the foot of the hill, on the other side of the road, was a house owned by John Douglas, hence the name "Douglas Corner". Their barn was below the Enfield road. Lizzie Douglas, his dau., m. Orick Wakefield of Lowell.

HOUSE NO. 41.

Returning to Bruce Corner and taking our original course to the northeast, we next come to the Rounds Place. This was first settled by Abner Rounds, who came here from Buckfield, Me., in 1830, where he was b. in 1780. He m. Sally Lowe in 1810; d. here in 1863. He was succeeded here by his son, Benjamin Rounds; b. 1821, m. in 1846, Sarah Pinkham, dau. of James Pinkham. She d. in 1887.

Their dau., Lucy, m. Leon Coffin of Lincoln. They lived here for a few years after the death of her mother, then moved to the village on School Street where she now lives. Leon, her husband, died there 7 June 1947. Mr. Rounds d. 19 July 1892.

Nathan Cole, above mentioned, next owned this place. He was the son of Nathan Cole, Sr., and a brother of Mrs. Earl Phinney. He sold to Ira Hanscom and Ira Hanscom to Ard Edwards.

The road goes over a brook just below there, called Rounds Brook. This brook never goes dry, and in dry times they haul water from it to all parts of the neighborhood.

This farm, together with the other farms in this vicinity, formerly owned by Ard Edwards, were recently sold to Robert H. Lowell, son of Geo. Lowell of Lincoln, and he is now living in this house. He m. Muriel Whalen. They have a son and a daughter.

HOUSE NO. 42.

Fillmore Cummings, son of Millard Cummings, has built a house beyond the brook, opposite the potato house which was built by Ard Edwards. He m. Gladys They have three children.

HOUSE NO. 43.

This was the other old schoolhouse, and it was situated near the present site of the potato house. This old house was moved up to Libby's corner, and is still standing there.

HOUSE NO. 44.

The next place to the right, called the Yelland Place, was first settled by Cyrus Johnson, who came here from Atkinson in 1825. He and his wife, Hepsibah and six children, all belonged to the Congregational Church. He sold out to Peter Coburn in 1834 and moved to Jackson.

Peter Coburn, son of Jonas Coburn, was b. in Buckfield in 1791; d. Lincoln, 1866; m. Mary, dau. of Jacob Howe. They lived on this farm from 1834 to 1858. They raised a family of five sons and one daughter. They moved from here to the home of their son, Hannibal, who lived in the house on Lee Street, Lincoln, where Bert Butterfield now lives. Mrs. Coburn, "Aunt Polly", died there in 1882.

THE YELLAND FAMILY

Peter Coburn sold his farm to Francis Yelland, who had been living down below there, towards Round Pond, on a farm first settled by Chandler Bruce. His barn was moved over to the Delano place and still stands there.

Mr. Yelland came to Lincoln in 1850, and lived here until his death in 1885. He had a taste for writing. We are enclosing a poem written by him on the death of a child. They were English people. Mrs. Yelland used to come over across the pasture to Grandmother Edwards' quite often. She was a fast talker. They were very nice people and were greatly missed when they were gone. Mrs. Yelland went to town to live with her dau., Elmyra Phinney, on upper Main Street in her declining years. She died in 1906 at the age of 86.

Albert Cole, son of Nathan Cole, Sr., was the next owner here. Then Hanford Wilson. They lived here a few years then sold out to Ard Edwards and moved to North Lincoln, where she died 9 Sept. 1944. He died 27 Feb. 1950.

Mrs. Wilson's dau., Edna Runnells, m. 26 Oct. 1925, Stanley Leroy Buzzell. He was b. in 1895. They live in Lincoln. She teaches school. Mrs. Wilson's son, John Wesley Runnells, is in the real estate business in Saco. He m. Nellie The Yelland house burned a few years ago, but the barn is still standing.

HOUSE NO. 45.

Osman Warren also lived down below there on the Round Pond road. His father, John Warren, came to Lincoln in 1830.

Osman was b. in 1836; d. in 1917; m. Jane Chadbourne of Molunkus. Elmer Clay now owns the place where he lived.

HOUSE NO. 46.

The house opposite the Yelland Place. This is where John-Warren settled when he came here in 1830. He was b. in Buckfield, 1807; m. Nancy Coburn, dau. of Silas Coburn afore-mentioned. He had three sons in the Civil War. William was the only one to return, the others died of fever. William succeeded his father here. He lived here about 10 years, then moved to the house on High Street, Lincoln, where E. A. Lowell now lives.

Mr. Matthew Swinburn was the next owner here. They had six sons. They lived here quite a long time. Ichabod m. Lydia Delano. They lived with her father on the Delano Place. Both have died and they left one son, Walter.

Mr. John Kenney was the next owner here, with his wife, Hannah. They had three sons, but one, Clifford, died. Weldon is m. and lives in Dixfield. They have one daughter, Dianne. Mr. Kenney died in Dixfield 13 Jan. 1939, where he moved several years ago.

Mr. Bert Bailey lived on this place for a while and raised chickens. He m. Rena Nichols. They now live in Lincoln Village.

Mr. Fay Clough now owns the place. The buildings have been burned and they have built a small cottage.

HOUSE NO. 47.

This is the David Lowe Place. It is situated above the road where it turns to go over to the Yelland Place.

He also came here from Buckfield in 1828, and cleared the farm and built the buildings. He m. Katherine Warren. They had seven children. Danville m. Vesta Doble, above-mentioned, and succeeded his father on this place, after living on the farm above the Dan Clay place. He was b. 11 June 1820. Alonzo Lowe succeeded him here. (See Lowe Gen.)

Alex Thompson was the next owner here. He sold to Ard Edwards and moved down to the Rounds Place to work for him. The Thompson house was moved down near the Rounds house, and Millard Cummings lived there and also worked for him. Mr. Cummings lived here until he bought the Ripley house.

HOUSE NO. 48.

David Lowe, Jr., another son of David, cleared the farm above on the other side of the road and built the buildings. These buildings still stand. He was b. in 1827. He was succeeded here by his sons, Ira and George. They sold out to Fred Whiting.

He m. Iva Chesley. Her father, Eli Delano, lived with them until his death, 19 Dec. 1938.

HOUSE NO. 49.

Mr. Lewis Osborne first settled this place, as far as we know. Dennis Jenkins was the next owner. His dau., Clara, m. Howard Pinkham as above stated; and his son Albert now lives in Woodland, Me. He always attended the Reunions of the Trans Alpine people held at the Landing. He brought several of his friends from Woodland to help out with the program.

J. S. Warren, another son of John Warren, was the next owner here. He was b. in 1848; d. in 1919; m. Vesta Coffin of Lee. They lived here several years, and his father and mother spent their last years here with them. They later moved to the village on School Street.

Mellen Lowe was the next owner here. He was the son of David Lowe, Jr., above-mentioned. He m. Ada Tripp of Burlington. They lived here for many years and raised a large family of children.

Mr. Lowe died here and his wife, Ada, went to the village to live with their son, Harold. This family was greatly missed when they were gone.

Fred Whiting now owns this place, and runs the farm with the one below there where he lives.

THE JORDAN FAMILY

Front row: Eleanor, Richard, Mrs. Helen (Clay) Jordan, Lois, Charles Harlen, and Barbara.

HOUSE NO. 50.

Jonathan Clay cleared and settled the farm opposite. He first lived down by Cold Stream Lake, as before stated. He next built a house down by the swale, opposite the Lowe place. This house was afterwards moved up to the Delano place, and still stands there. (We will take this up later as house No. 52.)

Mr. Clay then built the buildings which now stand on the Clay place. He was b. in Buckfield in 1794; d. Lincoln, 1871; m. Sally Davis of Freedom, Me. He came to Enfield in 1823, and lived there a few years. His two oldest sons were b. there. Then he made a dugout and transported his family up across Cold Stream Lake to the point near the mill where he built his first house. He also brought along all his household furniture. Mr. Clay was a soldier in the war of 1812. He and his wife lived with their son, Luther, during the last years of their lives. Their son, Jonathan, was killed in the Civil War, 18 Dec. 1864. He enlisted 21 Aug. 1862, Corp. A-18. He died in Petersburg, Va.

Their son, Daniel Clay, succeeded them on this place. He was b. in Enfield in 1825; m. 1st, Lois Pinkham, and 2nd, Mrs. Helen Clay, widow of his brother, Jonathan, Jr. They lived here a long time and raised a family. He m. 3rd, Mrs. James Folsom of Burlington. Her son, Bertie Folsom, lived here with them. He was a member of the T. A. baseball team.

After the death of Mr. Clay his wife sold out to H. E. Littlefield, son of Harrison Littlefield, afore-mentioned. They still live here. They raised a family of children, all of whom are now married.

HOUSE NO. 51.

Just a little way above this house was the Danville Lowe Place. He later moved down with his father in House No. 47, as above-mentioned. John Warren and his son, Osman, lived here next. Later John and his wife went to live with their youngest son, J. S. Warren, as above stated, in House No. 49, and finished their days there with them.

William Lancaster was the next owner here. His son, Everard, m. Annie Libby. They lived on Pleasant Street, Lincoln, until after his death. He died here 6 Sept. 1944. Mrs. Lancaster now lives in Lee.

Elias Reed lived in this house next. He was born in Vermont, 8 Apr. 1844; d. in Lincoln, 18 Mar. 1936, at the age of 91 years. He was the last of the Civil War Veterans to live in Lincoln.

HOUSE NO. 52.

This house is on the other side of the road, and was moved up from the field as before stated. This was the Steven Delano Place. He was b. in Paris, Me.; m. Joan Warren, dau. of John and Nancy Coburn Warren, b. 7 Mar. 1834. They lived here for many years and raised eight of their nine children to manhood and womanhood. They moved to Lincoln Village and spent their declining years with their oldest son, Eli. They both died there. He d. 14 Dec. 1938; she

d. 28 Aug. 1921. Lydia succeeded her father here. She m. Ichabod Swinburn. They had two children. (See Delano Gen.)

HOUSE NO. 53.

Down below on the Lovejoy lot, Frederick Edwards built a house and cleared some land. He lived there with his first wife, who was Angeline Bruce, dau. of Chandler Bruce. Their son, Jerome, was b. there 28 Dec. 1872. He d. 13 Sept. 1874. Angeline d. 26 Feb. 1873. Shepherd Potter next lived in this house. Geo. L. Edwards now owns this place, which is now a wood lot.

THE CLOSING YEAR

By HENRY RAND EDWARDS

Again, far away to the ever-summer latitude,
The brightness and the bloom with the summer birds have fled;
And from Hope back to Memory another year hath sped.
So dance we tonight the harvest dance of gratitude
For all that is left to us above the silent dead.

Dance we tonight for the viol rings cheerfully,
Hope holds the New Year, and smiling cheers us on,—
But chide not the footsteps that thread the mazes fearfully,
And blame not the joyless heart that turns back tearfully,
Tearfully to years and to friends that are gone.

Faded lie the forest leaves on the frozen meadow-land;
Sombre are the shadows o'er the once smiling vale.
Low beat the muffled drums. Wild dirges wail.
For weird dim forms from out the mystic shadowland
Move to our measure and at our feast regale.

Yet dance we tonight in our tremulous security,
Humble in our joyousness, hopeful when we weep.
For only the tender heart can taste its joy in purity;
And tearful eyes see clearer, in the lowering obscurity,
The stars that shine eternal while the fragile flowerets sleep.

Low let the drum beat. Trill the music tenderly;
Silent as the heart-throb be our tuneful tread;
For sorrow hangs above our joy upon a brittle thread,
And the fabric of our happiness is fashioned out so slenderly,
The heart that holds the most of love has ever most to dread.

Yet dance we tonight. And the sweeter for its rarity
The light upon our lives that our unity will shed.
Then dance we in kindly love that knoweth no disparity,
Welcoming the New Year in Faith, Hope and Charity,
Peace with the living, and tears for the dead.

The above poem was written for and read in a Grange meeting by the author.

STANZAS

Written after having been about five weeks at sea.

Morn greets me; but not through the glass
Of the old diamond window it plays,
But down through the skylight it sends
Its timid and trembling rays.

I breathe the fresh air now, 'tis true,
But not in green mead, lovely sight;
Above and below all is blue,
And our ship hurries on in her flight.

No cottage with smoke gently rising.
(The sight, oh how welcome 'twould be);
Hill or valley, with streamlet meand'ring,
Nor forest trees waving, I see.

I tread 'neath a clear, open sky.
But not among lambkins and sheep;
Nor following the plow now am I;
Although I am plowing the deep.

Night comes, but I'm not at the hearth,
With brothers and sisters surrounded.
With chat unreserved, and mirth,
And humor, were cherished unbounded.

But over our gallant ship's side,
I'm leaning, and viewing the foam
Of remorseless Atlantic's dark wave,
Three thousand miles distant from home.

Alas! and as night, sable night,
O'er the wave draws her dark curtain forth,
I retire in sadness to dream
Of my friends and the land of my birth!

Yet still there's a ray that is beaming,
That pierces the gloom of my breast;
From Hope's lovely star it is gleaming,
And it brightly shines out from the West.

Shine on, lovely star of my hope,
May'st thou on my path never set;
With all obstacles then I can cope,
And see freedom and happiness yet.

Atlantic, May, 1845.

FRANCIS YELLAND.

CONGRATULATIONS

It's something wonderful, something fine.
An achievement few possess,—
This Golden Anniversary of thine;
A half century of happiness.

Every year is a happy year;
You meet all troubles minus fear;
Your smiles never permit a tear;
And every day is filled with cheer.

Together you've traveled many a mile
On the rocky road of life;
All obstacles melt before your smile.
You've conquered all your strife.

In these gloomy times, you're like bright rays.
Your wonderful marriage merits our praise;
You've enriched the world with your friendly ways,
Continually proving that kindness pays.

Many friendships you've built along the way
Of your search for happiness.
They'll gather to greet you this anniversary day,—
Living symbols of your success.

Many the thoughts that warm your day,
Of good times past, whose mem'ries stay.
Your hearts are young though your heads are gray,
Because of those mem'ries that won't fade away.

Your happiness is there for all to see.
Your marriage will an inspiration be,
To all youngsters, such as me,
Who'll soon set sail upon that sea.

Many wonderful years you've left behind,
Filled both with rain and sun;
Because of your love, the years were kind;
And,—the best is yet to come.

Written by Robert Jacque Weatherbee, (19), for the golden wedding anniversary of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Kneeland, May 1, 1949.

TO MY BROKEN PIPE

By HENRY R. EDWARDS

All cold on the window-sill, crushed by the sashes
Remains my old pipe, in its ruins alone;
Its fire is extinguished—peace be to its ashes—
Its beauty has faded, its fragrance has flown.
No more shall it solace the lone sorrow-hearted,
No more the convivial band shall it cheer;
But as one that was faithful till glory departed,
I mourn thee, my pipe, with a lay and a tear.

For, borne to my senses, remotely and faintly,
Like dream of a love in the dim years ago,
Or echo of melody, soothing and saintly,
Thy sadly-sweet incense is lingering on;
And remorsefully now as I see thee thus lying,
I think how unheeded our joys while they last:
That ever the bliss of the present denying
We long for the future and sigh for the past.

But thus I must leave thee, all empty and hollow,
To prize thee the more that thy value has fled.
And the dark road of destiny I, too, must follow,
To be of thy number, the cold and the dead.
And oh, that my life be thus blest in its leaving,
That roses may bloom in my sepulchre's mould,
That virtues survive me, in memory weaving,
A garland of love when my ashes are cold.

A MIDNIGHT REVERIE

I'll join again the youthful throng,
To dance the hour away;
But few there are who know us long,
The old friends, where are they?
The merry friends we used to know,
Who danced here 40 years ago?

In fancy I can see each face:
Pearl, Edna, Eva, Gertie, Grace.
Now 'Lisha with his cheerful grin,
Tunes up his trusty violin.
A partner each, at last we've found;
"Now right and left! Eight hands around!"

The music has a subtle charm,
Beauty and youth entrance;
When Gertie takes my offered arm,
We glide into the dance,
And feelings that I thought had fled
Arise like spectres from the dead.

Old friends, Ard, Hal, each nod, nearby;
Stand smiling, Mae and Kate,
As sweetly as when hopes were high
And life was roseate.
Oh dead romance, illusion sweet,
That went with youth's light tripping feet.

Ah me! How time and fervor slip!
The blood of youth's full veins,
That thrilled when dainty fingertip
Met mine to rapture's strains,
Now flows with cool and even beat,
As sluggish as my lagged feet.

The dance ebbs slowly to an end,
It dies out soft and low;
Like dead leaves driven by the wind.
The phantom dancers go;
The vision fades, the faces flee;
And a loneliness comes over me.

Ah well! Age too has its reward;
Dear heart, thy faith and truth,
The loyal love and sorrow shared
I would not yield to youth!
The brilliant rays of morning sun
By golden sunset is outdone.

ROCK ME TO SLEEP

By FRANCIS YELLAND

The beauteous on Nettie's cheek
Had turned to lily white.
The stars within her azure eyes
Had lost their radiant light.
She suffered, but did not repine;
No tear-drops filled her eyes.
Who could but know that Angels were
Then beckoning from the skies.

'Rock me to sleep' she softly said,
While laboring hard for breath;
Alas! she knew not it would be
Her long last sleep of death.
Full well her weeping parents knew,
(Who heard with rending pain)
That when their little darling slept,
She ne'er would wake again.

As if in haste to join the host,
That beckoned from the skies;
'Rock me to sleep' in feeble tones
Full often would arise.
They rocked her till the sun went down,
Behind the purple hill.
And while the watchers wept around,
Her spirit lingered still.

When closing were the shades of night,
This little favorite dove
Unfurled her wings and took her flight,
To brighter realms above;
Yes, like a little fragile bark,
Into safe harbor driven,
Sweet little Nettie fell asleep,
And woke again in Heaven.

Lincoln, Maine, April 15, 1864.

In memory of Nettie, daughter of Stephen and Joan Delano.

FORSAKEN

HENRY R. EDWARDS

Not a word in praise of him, even under breath;
Grief must hide its tears, even after many years;
He did a daring deed, but he died a felon's death,
'Mid a Nation's anathemas and jeers.
I seek not to mitigate his heritage of hate,—
War has its immunities, defeat makes the crime;
But readily and steadily he marched to his fate,
And he stepped to the music every time.

Valor has a vicious name upon the losing side.
He knew the bitter cost, and boldly played, and lost.
And he sought no support but his self-sustaining pride,
That no humiliation could exhaust.
No friendliness found room in that fateful hour of gloom;
Sympathy must silent be. Pity must be dumb,
And wearily and drearily he marched to his doom,
But he stepped to the throbbing of the drum.

Mournfully the music wailed with sobbing tenderness,
And perchance to him it said what the players never played,
As a voice from beyond human sorrow or distress
Consoling him to suffer undismayed.
But Caution bids me pause ere I seem to plead his cause;
Sorrow may not sigh for him with even baited breath,
But beautiful and dutiful a something in him was,
As he marched with the music to his death.

It became the duty of the author's brother, Frederick A. Edwards, who with his military band was for a time stationed at City Point (headquarters) to play a dirge at the execution of a Confederate Captain, who, in his effort to escape had killed a guard.

Upon his return home, Mr. Edwards, in giving an account of the event made this statement in regard to the condemned man. "He was very pale, no doubt a good deal affected, but he stepped to the music."

These words furnished the inspiration for the above poem, which was afterwards set to music by Mr. Edwards in collaboration with the author; but it was never published.

HONOR ESSAY

By GEORGE EVERETT EDWARDS

MAINE, the nation's sunrise portal, situated in the northeastern corner of our land, has always been known for the rugged contour of its coast, the grandeur of its mountains, the splendor of its lakes and streams and for its miles of forest land.

As a summer resort, it has been for years the haven and retreat of vacationists; and recently with the introduction of winter sports Maine has become a playground for each season of the year, the delight of all those who visit it.

However, perhaps because of the natural beauties and physical features of the "Pine Tree State", we may have overlooked the fact that, of all the states of the union, Maine has added her share of outstanding men and women.

For instance, in the field of practical arts we are well represented by such men as Sir Hiram Maxim, famous as the inventor of the automatic cannon, which shoots 600 shots per minute, and is known by his name.

The logging industry of this state was greatly benefited by the Lombard Log Hauler, invented by two brothers of this vicinity.

Then it is only natural that a country as rugged as Maine should produce such a hardy Arctic explorer as Donald B. MacMillan.

Our state has had many men in important public offices, such as Hannibal Hamlin, who was Vice President with Lincoln.

All in all, the brilliancy of the work of Thomas B. Reed, author of Reed's Parliamentary Law, has been excelled by only one or two of the other public men of the Pine Tree State; and when we think of Maine's record this is indeed high praise. Mr. Reed was likewise Speaker of the House.

Even though James G. Blaine was not born in Maine, he can truly be called a Maine man. Mr. Blaine was Secretary of State twice and he then ran for the Presidency in 1884, but was defeated by Mr. Cleveland.

In a more or less related field we find General Neal Dow who agitated and secured the passage of the statute prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in Maine.

And then there was Dorothea Dix who was one of the greatest prison reformers.

In the field of fine arts we have a few sculptors; for among the works of art in the Sweet Museum at Portland is the "Pearl Diver", one of the best pieces of that art ever produced by an American. It gives us pride to recall that the author of these chiseled lines was Paul Akers. It was this statue, by the way, that inspired Hawthorne to write "The Marble Fawn".

Another world famous sculptor is Franklin Simmonds, whose numerous works also stand in the Sweet Museum.

The sketches and paintings of Maine by Wallace Nutting have been familiar to almost everyone.

As far as music is concerned, we have produced Lillian Norton, better known as Madame Nordica, the prima donna, whose cultivated musical talent has pleased many audiences here and abroad. She took leading parts in 40 operas and in all the standard oratorios. As well as Lillian Nordica, we have Annie Louise Cary, a very talented singer.

The author of "God's World", Edna St. Vincent Millay, is one of America's best modern lyrical poets. It was she who wrote the opera, "The King's Henchman".

Along with Miss Millay is Edwin Arlington Robinson, whose high seriousness, extraordinary powers of condensation, tenderness of understanding, brilliant analysis and vivid description, makes his poetry appreciated and widely read. For these reasons, Mr. Robinson is among the best of our contemporary poets.

Maine's sons and daughters have also written much fiction and Lincoln Colcord's "Sea Tales" have found wide circulation.

Mary Ellen Chase, whose "Goodly Heritage" and whose informal essays have made her one of the best known and best loved of contemporary authors, was not only Maine born but uses Maine as a background for the greatest part of her writings.

Thus we see in Maine the spirit of ambition always runs high. Whether it emanates from the clear and invigorating breath of the hills, from the romantic reaches of the restless sea, or from the unseen heart of creation. It is found there in profusion. Many of its votaries win the laurel wreath and slip through the postern to further conquests.

For those who do are ever blessed,
Nor greater need can find,
Than that their names live with the best,
In hearts of all mankind.

The above Honor Essay was written for and delivered in the graduating exercises of the University of Maine, Class of 1933, by the Author.

TRANS ALPINE REUNION

THE first meeting of the Trans Alpine Reunion was held in Edwards Grove on Upper Cold Stream Lake, below the Narrows, on Sept. 3, 1922. The morning was spent in renewing old acquaintances and preparing the picnic dinners.

After dinner a program was presented, consisting of chorus singing, speeches and readings.

Following is a list of those who were present at this first meeting, and it will be noted that many of them are no longer with us. Mr. and Mrs. Evan Bruce, Ruth Hanson, Homer Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Melburn Bruce, Clyde Bruce, Mrs. Rhuaina Bruce, Mrs. Jennie Barker, Mrs. Nellie Bradbury, Isabel Bradbury, Mr. and Mrs. Asa G. Clay, Asa G. Clay, Jr., Margaret Clay, Coleen Clay, Kathryn Clay, Mrs. Laura Wells, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Clay, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cutler, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clifford, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Crouse, Dorothy Church, Walter Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Edwards, George Everett Edwards, Ard Edwards, Eva E. Edwards, Kate Edwards, May Bailey, Ruth Furrough, Clara Goodwin, Mrs. Mary Gorman, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Hersey, Alford Jipson, Lottie Jipson, Lewis Jipson, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Lancaster, Mrs. Sarah Libby, Mrs. Hittie McKeen, Mrs. Daisy Kneeland, Beulah Kneeland, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Libby, Andrew Fogg, Mrs. Hattie Fogg, Gladys Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell Phinney, Viola, Lillian, Marion and Merle Phinney, Linwood Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Thompson, Lida and Vernard Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kneeland, Mr. and Mrs. I. There were 108 present.

The second meeting of the Reunion was held at the same place on Sept. 11, 1923, with 109 present. Beans baked in the ground and coffee were served to all present. Following dinner a business meeting was held and a permanent organization was formed, to be known as the Trans Alpine Reunion Association. L. C. Libby was elected President, Kate M. Edwards, Secretary, and Lisle Littlefield, Treasurer. The following program committee was also appointed to prepare a program for the next meeting. May Bailey, Margaret Clay and Ethel Fredland were appointed. They voted to meet in the school-house if it should be rainy. They also voted to meet on the 2nd Sunday in August.

In a few years the site of Edwards Landing was cleared up by Ard Edwards and the Club House built to give the Reunion a permanent home.

Much credit for the success of the Reunion is due to A. B. Jenkins and his musical friends from Woodland and to Geo. McLean, and other talent from Millinocket.

GENEALOGY
TRANS ALPINE

GENEALOGY NUMBERING

The inner line of numbering merely numbers lists of children in families.

The middle line, beginning with the first ancestor of a family gives, consecutively, a serial number for every descendant listed. When this name is to be given later for further information, a star is placed between the middle and inner numbers.

The outer line beginning with 1 for the first ancestor of a family, contains only the serial numbers of persons who are mentioned the second time, to list their children.
